IT'S GRANDEST IN THE WORLD, SHE DECLARES

"I Never Expected to Feel as Well and Strong as Tanlac Has Made Me," Asserts Mrs. Stephanie Base, of Philadelphia.

Characteristic of the statements that have made Tanlac a household word throughout the world is the following from Mrs. Stephanie Base, 5547 Linmore St. Philadelphia, Pa. "Tanlac is certainly a world wonder for a medicine. When I began taking it I was so run down, nervous and miserable as a result of stomach trouble that I never felt like turning my hands to a thing in the way of work."

"Since Tanlac, toned up my stomach, however, and built me up. I am feeling just like a new person. My stomach acts just like a new one, my nerves are calm and steady and I have regained all my lost weight and strength. I never expected to feel as well and strong as I do now and as long as I live I will have a good word to say for Tanlac, the grandest medicine in the world."

Tanlac is sold by Connellville Drug Co., and leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

SULPHUR SOOTHES UGLY, ITCHING SKIN

The First Application Makes Skin Cool and Comfortable.

If you are suffering from eczema or some other torturing, embarrassing skin trouble you may quickly be rid of it by using Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.

This sulphur preparation, because of its germ destroying properties, seldom fails to quickly subdue itching even of fiery eczema. The first application makes the skin cool and comfortable. Rash and blotches are healed right up. Mentho-Sulphur is applied like any pleasant, cold cream and is perfectly harmless. You can obtain a small jar from any good druggist.—Advertisement.

Like Clouds Across a Summer Sky foretelling the dreaded storm are the symptoms of women's diseases which point the way to physical and mental breakdown. The nervous irritability, the headache, the dragging pains, are not only hard to endure, but they bring certain knowledge of collapse unless something is done to relieve the sufferer. There is one standard remedy which has shown the way out for nearly 50 years. The women who have "come back" through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound present an argument stronger than words could ever be.—Advertisement.

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, FEB. 15, 1922

COUNCILMAN STONE AS HEAD OF RATE COMMITTEE.

The suggestion of Councilman Stone that steps be taken to secure a readjustment of freight rates between Connellsville and other points is both timely and practical. The city being without a functioning chamber of commerce or similar organization it must now devolve upon the City Council to serve in that capacity, or at least take the first steps in matters usually handled by a chamber of commerce. It was, therefore, quite proper that a movement toward securing lower freight rates should originate with the municipal body.

The job the committee to be appointed by Mayor Mitchell will have to deal with is not a small one. It cannot be disposed of in a perfunctory manner if results are expected to be accomplished. Facts and figures must be gathered and the whole problem studied in detail in order that the committee will become thoroughly conversant with the question. This cannot be done in a day or by persons who do not have a full comprehension of the difficulties involved. Care should therefore be exercised by Mayor Mitchell in selecting the persons who are to comprise this committee.

By way of suggestion it can be said to be the unanimous opinion of the people of the community that no better choice for chairmanship of this committee could be made than to name Councilman Stone. No man in the city is better qualified for that important post. His railroad training and experience peculiarly fit him to direct the work of a committee dealing with any subject relating to transportation. He is entirely familiar with the freight situation and has an understanding of the needs of Connellsville both as a point of origin and the receipt of freight shipments.

It would be no reflection upon the discernment of Mayor Mitchell to further suggest that he appoint Mr. Stone chairman of this committee and empower him to select his own fellow committeemen.

JAMES CHARLESWORTH.

Having excelled service to first place in his life the late James Charlesworth was actuated by no motive or desire other than to do his part with a singular fidelity to duty as he saw it, which, to people who did not have the privilege of knowing him intimately, may have appeared as an obsession. But to him it was a conscientious conviction and an unchanging rule of life.

In the very simplicity of his faith in all his finer and nobler things of life, his loyalty and devotion to his profession, his family and friends and his church, his life will be a continuing example to all those who may doubt or waver as to which is the better part to choose.

Having made that choice, and adhered to it without wavering or shadow of turning, Mr. Charlesworth leaves behind him a splendid heritage—rich alike to those closest to him in kinship and affection and to those who had even limited opportunities to appreciate his worth as a God-fearing, God-serving man and citizen.

That relations in City Council are somewhat strained is not surprising in view of the strain to which certain relationship has been subjected.

The result in Perry township goes to show the increasing unpopularity of the prevailing styles of bond issues.

There is a disproportion in doing a common drunk 90 days in jail and letting loose common but more dangerous drunken auto drivers off with $25 fine.

The good people of the Vanderhill-Dickerson Run-Dawson section will have such a warm-hearted welcome for President Harding when he visits the ancestral home of his family that he will be sure to schedule a return, perhaps a number of them.

The School Director

Harrisburg Telegraph.

The school director is a poor, hard working soul, deserving of the sympathy of the public he serves. But does he not? He does not. He is damned if he does. He is damned if he does not. If he builds real, honest-to-goodness school houses, which cost real money, he is cursed by the tightwads of the community who would kill a loose for his hide and tallow. If he is content to let the children wander along in old-fashioned, overcrowded badly lighted, unsanitary fire-traps, the progressive folks of the community are on his trail. If taxes go down, he has done nothing more than his duty—and scarcely enough of that. If they go up he is extravagant and wasteful. If he enforces the attendance laws to the letter he is "needlessly strict"; if he does not, the state authorities take him to task. Any way you take it the school director finds himself between the upper and the nether millstones. His is a hard life, and he serves without pay. Not only that, but he comes all the way to Harrisburg to confer with his fellows on how to make the public schools better. Who can understand the measure of devotion to this job and the long suffering of the school director? Who, indeed?

WINTER.

It seems so dead out there today.
The snow lies deep about the place;
The ground whereon the children play
Has lost its touch of charm and grace.

What was a garden, now is bare,
The rose walks stony and cold and fro.
There is no hint that life is there
Beneath the drifted ice and snow.

The sparrows twitter in the tree,
But otherwise no sound is heard,
Where used to ring the minstrelsy
Of many a golden-throated bird.

I gaze across this barren waste
Of beauty held in winter's clutch,
I note the lines of sorrow traced
By desolation's cruel touch.

"Suppose," unto myself, I say,
"This garden bleak and cold and bare,
Were doomed forever thus to stay
And never rose should blossom there?"

But all this ugliness must pass
And ice and snow must vanish soon;
Spring shall awake the slumbering grass,
The roses shall return in June.

So with this faith through life I'd go,
Meeting my ups and downs as they
Knowing that all the ice and snow
Must vanish with the birth of spring.

Cokers Stage Wonderful Come-Back; Lose Game To N. Braddock, 35-32

Overcome Lead of 13 Points Held at End of First Half.

LAY NORWIN ON FRIDAY

The Connellsville High School basketball team staged a wonderful come-back in the game with the North Braddock team here last night and lost by three points. The score was 35-32. The Cokers were playing a high class opponent and had to fight an up-hill battle all the way.

Coch Wine's proteges showed their pluck and come-back strength in the second half. Entering the period trailing behind a 13 point lead, the Cokers closed the gap entirely. McCormick was almost wholly responsible for the scoring, assisted materially by his team mates. He scored six field goals in this period, all of which were almost directly from the center of the floor.

The locals bid the visiting aggregation just about ready to break when the game ended and the contest was lost by a close margin.

The line-up:
Connellsville—32. N. Braddock—35.
Solomon F. Kurtz
McCormick F. Gibson
Lowrey C. Jones
Nixon G. Means
Welsh G. Zohrak

Referee—Wall.

M. E. TEAM IS EASY VICTOR; BAPTISTS FORFEIT TO B. & O.

The Methodists easily took over the Fayette Bakers in a game at the Baltimore & Ohio Y. M. C. A. last night. The score was 47-16. The church outfit was going strong and although the Bakers never gave up the fight they were outclassed. The first half ended 29-9 for the Methodists. After scoring nine out of 10 fouls in the first half Addis "blowed" seven in a row in the second period.

In the first game of the evening, that between the Baptists and Baltimore & Ohio Clerks, the former forfeited. The team refused to abide by decisions of the referee and walked from the floor. At that time the Clerks had a lead of 15-1.

The line-up:
Methodists—47. Bakers—16.

Moore F. Addis
Sherrick C. Rice

SECOND SET OF CITY LEAGUE GAMES TO BE PLAYED OFF TONIGHT

The second set of games in the City League will be played tonight at the stadium. The initial clash, between the Snyder Five and St. Vincent's of Leasent, will take place at 7:45 o'clock, followed immediately afterwards with a game between the Baltimore & Ohio Clerks and the American Legion five.

No prediction as to the result in either game would be safe. St. Vincent's outfit has never played in Connellsville, but is reputed to have a fast outfit, practicing regularly. The Snyders are known to be a powerful combination.

The Clerks also have the reputation of being a speedy quintet, and although the Legion has been bumping along on the rocks so far this year the team has been strengthened for the City League games. It is hard to tell what may be uncovered in a evening.

Two surprises were spring in the opening games, and those who know the strength of the Snyders are curiously watching to see what the Leasent quintet may do.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. J. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 25c and 50c.

State Plans to Send Out Many Thousand Quail

By Associated Press
HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—Thousands of quail are to be distributed in the woods and fields of Pennsylvania in April by the State Game Commission, which has received word of catching of many birds to be kept for shipment to this state. The quail are of a type which thrives in Pennsylvania and is planned to care for them in game preserves for a time before liberating them.

In addition to the quail purchased the men in charge of game preserves have been successful with propagation plans. Hundreds of pheasants also will be distributed in the state. Many of them are being bought from men in such work.

"You've got to sit down," he said gruffly. "I want to talk to you."

"In a minute, then," returned Marcus. "I'll get the book first."

Very white, Robert walked before MacKenzie to the bookcase. Then with one arm he raised the curtain and with the other he pulled the book from the shelf. He could feel beneath the thick material the slender, quivering body. And there, as the two men stood facing the shelves laden with the masterpieces of the world, and Marcus was running his eye up and down, Robert felt that first wonderful protective love that comes to a man when he is shielding a woman.

"Evelyn said it was here," observed MacKenzie. "Let me look!"

"A—B—C—Here's D. It ought to be on this shelf."

He read aloud the names of the books under his eye while still the strong hand of his companion held up the curtain and the girl.

"Ah, here it is," came an exclamation. "There! Thanks, Bob! Now I'll sit down a minute."

He walked back to the table, and Percival carefully dropped the drapery. Keeping his eye on the other man's back, he ran his fingers over the curtain until he came to the curly head of Polly Hopkins. Two tender pats fell upon it. Then he, too, crossed to the center of the room.

"You're a hospitable chap, Bob," laughed Marcus. "High-ho! but today I've been some busy. I'll bet you a quarter of a dollar it won't be three months before I get every squatter off that shore. The fact of it is, I've only got to catch Hopkins, and the rest'll be easy. He's a bad actor, and that girl of his is a saucy baggage."

"She's a very good girl," Robert interposed in deep tones, "and very pretty, too."

The bookcase draperies moved ever so little. Polly Hopkins almost burst with joy when she heard those words.

"Pretty enough, I suppose," Marcus conceded, "but not good. She's like the rest—bad clean through."

The curtains moved a little more; and Robert caught the sway of them out of the tail of his eye. He felt that if MacKenzie did not go soon, he would throw him out. What the girl would do if Mac started a tirade against her father, Robert did not dare contemplate.

"Look here, Marc," he burst forth, "you're all wrong about those people, all dead wrong. They don't harm any one, as I can see. Why can't you live and let live?"

His eyes flashing, Marcus stood up. "No harm, no harm, you say," he bared. "Why, they steal everything in sight, and in a few more years there won't be a fish left in the lake. There won't be anything to catch in season or out, if the squatters keep up their infernal poaching. Hunting and fishing are for gentlemen, my dear Bob! Don't forget that!"

"Gentlemen be d—d!" ejaculated Robert, and then the curtains swayed as that he got to his feet and started toward the door.

"Marc," he continued, "perhaps we can't agree on this matter at all, but I really do want a heart-to-heart talk with you about it. But not now. The fact is I was busy when you came in."

"Thinking up a few more pleas for the squatters, eh?" the other man teased. "Well, old fellow, just remember this. I've got at least twenty-five men watching everything that scamp of a Hopkins does, and when I get something on him, there won't be twenty-four hours between that time and his arrest."

Robert almost showed the speaker out of the door; but Marcus only chuckled good-naturedly as he went away. When Robert turned the key in the lock, he stood quite still, breathing hard.

From behind the curtain, Polly thrust out her head, her small face wrinkled and tears standing thick in her eyes.

"I'm a-goin' after that pup an' swat him," she snarled stormily. "Evelyn says when he says daddy's coming, Percival lifted a precautionary hand."

"Not too loud," he warned. "Come here." She went slowly forward, her head hanging; but when he held out his hands she snatched them and bent her curly head over the strong fingers and kissed them passionately.

"Poor little girl, poor little Polly," murmured Robert, brokenly. Then as she swayed toward him, his arm went around her, and for a moment he pressed her head against his breast.

"Polly, Polly," he whispered, kissing her hair. "Oh, God, if I owned that lake property I'd—"

A certain deep tone in his voice brought up Polly's head, and she saw in his eyes an expression that made her struggle from his arms. Fleeing to the porch window, she was gone before Robert could stop her.

"Bob's a queer fish, Eve," laughed MacKenzie, as he came into the music room where Evelyn Robertson was waiting for him. "If I hadn't kept my temper just now, we should have parted bad friends."

"That's like you, dear," she smiled. "But then, of course, you wouldn't let him bother you. Fussing about the squatters again, I suppose."

Evelyn took his big fingers in examining the white spots on one of the polished nails.

"My big man mustn't mind Bob's," she exclaimed persuasively, noting the frowning lines that had come in his face. "He's sentimental. Robert is full of half-baked notions about squatters and helping the downtrodden, and that sort of thing."

The man laughed indulgently. It

"Oh, Eve, Eve, I Want You!"

delighted him to have the girl of his choice express his own sentiments so well.

"How precious!" he murmured. "They can't fool my Eve much, can they?" By a simple twist of his wrist he captured her hand. Then he took up a favorite topic with new zest.

"I want to improve my property, dear. The Silent City's an eyesore! If I could get the squatters off the lake-side and buy the Bennett farm, I could make my place the handsomest in the county."

At the suggestion about Oscar's farm, a different light flashed into the girl's eyes. Her hand twitched in his.

"That would be wonderful, dear," she ejaculated. "If—if the squatters weren't there, you could make a very lovely drive right along where their road runs, couldn't you?"

This had been MacKenzie's idea, also. What a capable girl Eve was!

He took her pretty face between his hands and kissed her once and then again and again.

"You darling!" he murmured. "You're the wisest little woman in the world! My whole ambition is to make our house just to suit you. I was talking to one of those landscape chaps up at the college the other day, and he said the lake section could be made charming. We can build our house on the hill just above there!"

"And the farm," Evelyn interposed. "That would just round out your place perfectly. Oh, honey, do that right away. Mr. Bennett will sell more for it as soon as you get rid of the squatters."

Marcus lighted a cigarette thoughtfully.

"The Bennett farm wouldn't be of any use to me," he explained slowly. "Unless I can make a clean sweep of the whole thing. It's a crime, I tell you. Evelyn, think of it! I had to send out of the county to get my men to watch those fellows down there. That makes no sense. It's a good thing I came back to put some snap into the fight against the squatters!"

The girl's white lids made a curtain between his shining eyes and her own. Evelyn was wishing, oh, how very much she desired that Marcus would buy the farm. Then Oscar could leave the country, and in another state he would see her free! She studied MacKenzie's face covertly through half-closed eyes, considering what to say and how to say it.

MacKenzie flung his cigarette into the grate. He found the suggestion of her veiled look so alluring that he gathered her into his arms and raised kisses upon her face.

"I love you so, sweet, I could almost eat you," he panted.

A happy sigh, like the perfumed breath of a rose, slipped from her parted lips, and when she laughed again, his deep chuckles joined hers.

"Darling!" he broke forth, "I'm just so happy, I can't have a row with Bob. Why don't you talk to him about the squatters? He'll listen to you, Eve! But, darling, that's a detail." He took one of her hands and kissed the tips of her slender fingers. "The most important thing to be considered now is when are you going to marry me? I can't simply wait much longer! Oh, Eve, Eve, I want you!"

He drew her head against him; and the silence that followed was fraught withapture for them both. Oh! She wanted to be his wife, to forget the past two wretched years. If Oscar did not stand in her way, how quickly she would give this man the happiness he craved and drink deep of it herself.

To Help You Prepare For the Masonic Banquet

One's poise will depend so very much upon the way one is dressed that we must urge you to see the little cluster of evening gowns that are being displayed on the Second Floor today. They have been brought here for this very occasion. The mode demands a low waistline, an unaccentuated décolleté, flowing draperies and flying panels and very capably do these creations follow out this fashionable decree. The materials are taffeta, georgette of the finest kind, and the misty, soft charmeuse. The colors highest in favor are Sweet Pea Green, American Beauty, Orchid, Orange—and Black. Many are decorated with scintillating, little sequins—glass beads that twinkle like so many stars in the light of a banquet chamber. The prices range $35 to $79.50.

For younger folk are the Flapper Frocks in delicate pastel colors—Ciel Blue, soft Orange and kindred tints. They make unusually fetching party dresses with their frills and flouncings, French flowers, silver girdles and tucky sleeves. The favorite material is chiffon taffeta. The prices range $29.75 up.

THE PARAMOUNT.

One of the most brilliant groups of talented young players ever assembled for a screen production appear in William Christy Cabanne's most recent picture, "At the Stage Door," which begins an engagement today at the Paramount Theatre. Heading the cast, Billie Dove, turned as a beauty in the Ziegfeld follies, and in "Sally," the great comedy hit of the current season. As the title indicates, the Cabanne production depicts a story of stage life, and Miss Dove naturally leads herself to the theme because of her actual stage associations. Others in the cast are Elizabeth North, blonde beauty of the Greenwich Village Theatre; Dorothy Gordon, Doris Eaton, Willie Collier, Jr., Miriam Battista, Frances Hess, Margaret Foster, C. Elliott Griffin, Myrtle Maubau, Charles Craig, Viva Gordon and Billy Quirk. Tomorrow the same picture will be shown.

THE ORPHEUM.

A dozen condemned men enjoyed the privilege of seeing the first motion picture ever exhibited in Sing Sing's death house through the kindness of Thomas Meighan, Paramount star, and his director, Tom Forman, who recently presented a projection machine to the prison. Interiors of the prison are shown in Mr. Meighan's new picture, "The City of Silent Men," which will be shown at the Orpheum today, Friday and Saturday. As the death house is small, the machine had to be placed 12 feet from the screen. The reels were run off twice so that the 12 men could see them through the steel barred doors of their cells. A bed-sheet, used as a screen, was stretched at the west end of the short corridor which has a row of cells on each side. When the reels were run off the sheet was shifted to the east side and the picture repeated. Mr. Meighan recently staged an escape scene at Sing Sing for his latest Paramount picture, "The City of Silent Men," and he was struck with the utter dreariness of the life of the inmates of the deathhouse that he asked Warden Lawes if a motion picture projection machine could be used there.
